Reading

I. Read the text and put a suitable phrase in each gap (61-65).

how we sit or walk	discomfort or misunderstandings	potentially disastrous words and grammar	also through our tone of voice

When we communicate with others, we express our thoughts and feelings not only through the words we choose, but _____ (61) _____, facial expression and body language. In fact, many communication experts believe that far more information is communicated non-verbally (without words) than verbally (with words). "Body language" is an important part of non-verbal communications. Body language includes many different aspects of our everyday physical behaviour: the way we greet one another; how we stand; _____ (62) _____; the way we position our arms and legs or use our hands and eyes are some of the most basic. To learn another language is more than just learning _____ (63) _____, it involves learning about another culture, too. We learn much of our own culture's body language before we learn to speak, from the time we are children, usually without even being aware of it. And that body language varies from culture to culture, so it's something to which second language learners should pay attention.

So, how attuned are you to other people's body language? Try this little experiment. Turn the volume on the television right down while you watch people interact on the screen. You may find it is more difficult to understand what's happening between people from unfamiliar cultures. Sometimes, cultural differences in appropriate body language can cause _____ (64) _____ too. For example, there are definite cultural differences in how much distance should be kept between two people who are speaking together. If you are used to people keeping their distance, you will feel very uncomfortable, and probably move away repeatedly, if someone keeps trying to stand closer to you at a party! We call this the "personal comfort zone". Another common example of misunderstanding is the use of a smile. In some Asian cultures, a smile can show embarrassment or apology. However, smiling back at a teacher who is unhappy with you, or a stranger whose foot you accidentally stepped upon is probably not a good idea in most English speaking cultures! Also, you should not assume that nodding your head means 'yes' or that shaking your head means 'no' or vice versa. Yes, you can even get that wrong, with _____ (65) _____ consequences.
